

Dispelling the fear by Gary Bate

If I fall off my perch, I'm going to have to learn to talk again, learn to walk again and learn to wipe my own arse again. And worse still, I'll be indoctrinated again in one of their schools.

You think it's going to be hunky-dory and you're going to be with mummy and daddy again. Such is your emotional mind. As you meet your end you will ask for them.

But mummy and daddy are back here – they're probably your (great) grandchildren ;)

Why is this so? Because you have a Soul and it's driven for completion and you can only complete your Soul whilst you are in flesh & blood.

So you think you're a good driver and or a good rider? You'll have to do more stringent tests next time around. You'll have to start all over again. You've had quite a life and you're going to have to do it all again in your next life. Maybe you'll get married? Maybe you won't. Maybe you'll be the opposite gender next time around? Maybe you'll be gay? Maybe you'll be straight? Maybe you'll be disabled in some way? Maybe you'll get born into Palestine or Ukraine and get slaughtered?

Death is not the fear because you just have to realise that there is really no death.

Why do you think all of the killing goes on? Because the people doing it know this truth – they know about re-incarnation. Your fear is in not knowing this truth.

I'm sure you've heard the expression that goes something like – a sledge hammer to crack a nut. That's how your Soul is. It is a wisdom hunter and it doesn't care how you get the wisdom! You will have an adventure in your next life that's for sure and you'll then have zero recollection of this life in exactly the same way as you've got zero recollection of your last life now.

Now there's nobody who writes anything quite like me. You just have to ask yourself if it's the truth? I believe I'm doing you the greatest service here but that's for you to know.

Did you lose your Son or your Daughter in this life? Are they back here now? Do you know them again now? Can you recognise them now? You'll be wiser when you can.

So which fear have you got? That you've blown your life and missed your chances to be somebody? That mummy and daddy (or some other deity) won't be waiting for you? That when your lights go out, it's the end of you forever? That you'll have worse circumstances next time around?

My God, you're alive now. Don't accept any illness. Don't accept it. Don't accept any disease, infirmity or disablement. Don't accept it. Your food won't kill you; but your mind will.

The problem is, you think this life is real, but it's not, it's an illusion and you're deluded – wake up!

We're here to own this life here and now. If we come back again, we'll have amnesia and we may never get exposed to great knowledge like this.

If you're more concerned about what results your kids are getting in their schools then you've lost the plot. Souls are blown to smithereens here. It's time for everyone to wake up ~ Gary.

<https://whatstress.com/>