

When you look at it as someone with a National ID, none of it makes sense, but when you see it as ONE controlling force that uses puppets to play political theatre to create wars, then it all makes sense. Wars serve many elite desires (there is no downside to them). They channel taxpayers money into elite pockets and create further regional indebtedness (via military spending); and they create more profit via reconstruction and they trim the expendable cattle (us). They are highly desirable...
